YOUR ROLE

Reporting for Dot 1 News

You create and work stories — the reporting, the record behind it, and the verification. You do not publish; an editor approves and publishes. Our standard is Just Truth, No Bias, and the system enforces it: a story can't skip verification.

Signing in

The newsroom has its own login at editorial.dot1.media (separate from the studio sign-in). An Owner sets up your account and your Reporter role.

Where you fit

As a Reporter you can create and work stories: manage sources and evidence, add to the reporting log, work verification, and add a rating. Assigning, approving, and publishing are the Editor's; anything you can't see is gated to a role you don't have.

The life of a story

- Origin — you write it, the AI Desk drafts it from the wire (a starting point, never published as-is), or it's promoted from a public tip.
- Sources — who and what the story rests on.
- Evidence — documents, links, and files that back specific claims.
- Reporting log — a timestamped record of what you did (calls, records). This is how we show our work.
- Verification — the checklist and per-claim checks that move the story up the ladder.

The review ladder (automatic)

1. Not Verified
2. Partially Verified
3. Verified
4. Editor Approved
5. Ready to Publish

Status is computed from the work done — you don't set it by hand.

Scoring

Every story is dual-rated — a machine rating plus an independent human second rating, reconciled. Add your second rating on the Score tab; where the newsroom expects independence, don't be the second rater on your own draft. Dual-rated stories carry a verified mark to readers.

Tips

Public tips (from the app and both websites) arrive in the Tips queue. Review them and promote worthwhile ones into stories. Some are anonymous — protect confidentiality.

Standards & corrections

Our public editorial standards and the correction ledger are maintained by editors. When we get something wrong, it's corrected on the record. Readers see whether a story was editor-approved and dual-verified.

Your runbook — publishing a story

1. Complete sources, evidence, and the reporting log.
2. Work verification until the ladder reaches Verified.
3. Add the independent second rating.
4. Hand off to an editor, who approves and publishes.

If something's off

- A story won't advance → finish the claims and checklist; the ladder is automatic.
- A page or button is missing → it's gated to a higher role; ask an Owner.
- The AI Desk says it isn't configured → a maintainer sets its key; not a newsroom fix.

This is your quick packet. The full Dot One Media Employee Handbook (in the portal Guide, and as a PDF) has every detail; each system also has its own in-app guide.
